Let's Start!

Just another day at the office.

Learning Outcome

Describe common activities at work to a visitor using short sentences.

Ask your partner:

- Do you have a daily routine at work?
What does it involve?
- What do you know about some of your colleagues' daily routine?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about daily routine.
- I can talk about what I have to do.
- I can show interest when talking to a colleague.

Let's Explore!

Vanessa and Daniel talk about cooking. When did Daniel start cooking?

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Daniel: Vanessa, did you chop the vegetables?
Vanessa: Almost there.
Daniel: After that we need to prepare all the daily sauce portions.
Vanessa: I already have the saucepans all set. First, I have to place the strawberries on the cheesecake slices.
Daniel : You're catching on to the routine.
Vanessa: Thanks. I have you showing me the ropes.
Daniel: So, how did you like the culinary course at college?
Vanessa: I learned a lot. I was in the kitchen every day for 4 hours, so I felt like I was already working.
Daniel: Well, you certainly demonstrate that you have the skills.
Vanessa: Thanks. When did you start as a chef?
Daniel: Oh, I started cooking about 20 years ago.
Vanessa: Amazing. That's why you're so good at so many recipes. I hope you can teach me more.

Let's Practice!

Target Words

- almost there (expression): almost finished a task or almost arrived at a place
Example: Boss: Did you complete that expense report?
Employee: I'm almost there. Just a few more pages.
- portions (noun): certain amounts of food to serve one person e.g. The sauce portions for each cheesecake must all taste the same.
- saucepan (noun): a round cooking pan used for frying or making sauces
e.g. The saucepan must be heated up before the cooking starts.
- to catch on (verb): to become better at a new process of work e.g. Vanessa is really catching on with the daily routine at her chef job.
- to show me the ropes (expression): to show a new person at work how something is done
e.g. Daniel is showing Vanessa the ropes, so she's learning quickly.
- culinary (adjective): related to cooking
e.g. Vanessa gained a lot of culinary skills from college.
- to demonstrate (verb): to show with action how something is done
e.g. Vanessa demonstrates fine culinary skills in her cooking.

Learning Points

Showing Interest

You show interest in people you meet by asking them common personal questions, often related to their work.

You can ask colleagues casual questions about:

- their commute to work
- what part of the city they live in
- what they like for lunch
- their family life

You avoid asking colleagues personal questions about:

- their romantic life
- personal health conditions
- detailed family history

Examples:

- How long does it take you to come to work?
- When did you start working here?
- How do you like your job?

Talking About Obligations (What you have to do)

When describing our job responsibilities, we use have to + infinitive to talk about an obligation or things that are necessary to do.

Examples:

- I have to put strawberries on the cake.
- I have to work every day.
